WITH SUPPLEMENT.

THURSDAY, JUNE 7, 1883.

SANTA FE'S TERTIO-MILLENIUM

The time is drawing near when this unique celebration will be opened, which will bring up the civilizations of the dim old past and contrast them with that of the nineteenth century.

Three hundred and thirty-three years have elapsed since the first settlement of Santa Fé by Europeans, and on the second of July the celebration of its life of three centuries and a third will be opened in the quaint old city, to continue until August 3d.

The spot is a notable mile-post of history, a good point to stand and view the steady march of progress which marks the history of the country from that beginning until now.

Nowhere else in the United States could such an exhibition be held, for about no other town hangs such dim and dreamy memories, reaching far back to the twilight time of our knowledge of American native races and peoples.

Around the old city, whose three hundred and thirty-third anniversary this exposition is to celebrate, hang the romance, the poetry and the pathos of civilizations which date backward into the dim pre-historic days of tribal peoples; about it cluster the glories and triumphs of conquest, the memory of historic valor, and the halo of sacrifices endured by those who first planted the banner of the Cross.

Down through the centuries come the music of mission bells, the gleam of lonely convent towers, and the noiseless tread of barefoot priests and friars.

But farther back through the shadowy pathway of the ages, comes the gleam of temple worship, the light of sacrificial fires. We see kneeling and dusky throngs bending before shrine and altar. We hear the sound of the tocsin, and catch from the vanished ages the tribal war-cry. We see beacon fires blazing from myriad hilltops and catch the echo of marching armies, with feathered plumes and gorgeous banners. We see the native pueblos, and hear the murmur of running streams whose waters laved the lips of Aztec chief and people. We climb the lofty heights seven thousand feet above the sea, where beneath blue and sunny skies Santa Fé nestles to-day as she did in the old, old days when Coronado first found her sleeping in the sun, sunshine, and looked abroad upon her valleys and on her mountain slopes, where her sheep and cattle grazed and her simple people still peopled her soil.

Two civilizations have had their day and passed away, giving place to a third, since the city had its beginning, and it is that later civilization, a civilization which is to be as enduring as the race, that has organized this grand exposition scheme, and taken this means, not only to lift the veil from the storied past, but to introduce the country to a knowledge of the fabulous mineral wealth and the rich resources of the territory.

Santa Fé is the center of a rich mining region, and the mining and industrial exhibits will doubtless be on a grander scale than has yet been represented in the country. The wealth of New Mexico's precious mines; exhibits of her coal and useful minerals, the productions of her forests, rich valleys and plains, the choice yield of her orchards and vineyards will all be represented. The exhibition will be suggestive epitome of the wondrous resources of this region, as well as its industries. Besides the exhibits from the mines and wonderful products of that country, bands of Indians in their native costumes will appear and show their skill in handwork, their peculiar dances, sports, games and races, demonstrating their dexterity with the lance and bow and arrow.

And still further the quaint old city of the centuries will of itself be an object of interest and curiosity, "the child of that early conquest. Many of its houses are as old as the days of Spanish triumph. Some of its churches were reared by the early fathers. The pictures and emblems and sacred vessels are the same, and here are the mines from which they took the treasures required to supplement their pious ardor with the help which they needed from the ranks of the soldiers. As the reduction of fare has been general on all the roads, without doubt the exposition, which should be of national interest, will attract large numbers of visitors from all parts of the country. There is nothing the Trans will enjoy more heartily than to be present—to stand on the spot where the life of the Past and the Present are so strangely mingled, and where the future stands up amid the unshaded prospect of a grand and prosperous development."

The bean crop about Lompoc is reported to be better than ever known before.

SHALL WE HAVE A NEW COURTHOUSE?

HERMOSILLO.

A Sonoran City of the Ideal Mexican Type.Brief of Advice at the Post of a Mountain of Marble Graphite and Pleasant Description of Life There—Hermosillo's Opinions of Los Angeles.*SPECIAL COMMERCIAL OF THE TIME.*Hermosillo, (Sonora, Mexico,) June 1, 1883.—The object with which I had intended to write you was that of giving information upon subjects connected with the acquisition and possession of lands by aliens in Mexico. I cannot, as yet, give that information with as much authority as I would wish, and so, if you please, this letter shall treat rather of this city of Hermosillo as I find it, and of the Sonoran people as they appear to me.*Of course this is a city of adobe, and very fortunate it is that there is no lumber here, or that the people do not know how to use it, or that they prefer mud, for the most cool and comfortable houses in the world, for this hot climate, are these thick-walled, high-roofed adobe casas.*The windows are barred, the streets are hollow, and there is not a wind-mill in the town. It is of city of ideal Mexican appearance, but what makes the contrast strongest between facts and possibilities is the fact that there are no question, no difficulty, no question of making a new site and erecting a new building is next in importance to the geology of the old property. It is a question of prime importance. The location to be selected, the prior to be paid, the sort of building to be erected, the manner in which the contract shall be let and the work done—all these are open questions, and demand the best thought that can be given them by the Supervisors and tax-payers, to the end that the public money required in making the needed improvements shall be honestly, economically and judiciously expended.*One leading question—that of a site for the proposed new structure—there is likely to arise a wide divergence of opinion and warm discussion. It should be investigated thoroughly, all suitable sites examined, and the best one, all things considered, selected. The choice must be made on the merits and for the common good, not in the interest of any individual or combination of individuals.*MOUNTAIN OF MARBLE.*A mountain of beautiful marble, a veritable mountain of material for unlimited mansions and villas and palaces, that has raised aloft its white rocks for centuries in solemn protest against this mud-building people.*An ingenious system of winter drainage is perfected throughout the city, and the streets are in the cleanest and only condition. It consists in wearing down the middle of the street until it becomes a trough, through which the floods find an easy course to the lowlands.*The only use to which the marble supply has hitherto been put is in paving the sidewalks, and that has been quite general.*But no cutting or polishing has ever been done; the paving is done with rough slabs, broken easily from the surface of the rocks. It is said that a slab was sent to San Francisco, and that it was broken in half for working purposes. As it was probably taken from the surface, however, where the Sonora sun has been baking it since the creation, there is reason in its hardness, and its experience is no evidence against the underlying stone.*IMPROVEMENTS, BUSINESS, ETC.*Two fine buildings are under construction on opposite sides of the plaza, a cathedral and a State house, both of natural burnt brick, both elegant structures, and will be upon their completion, ornaments to the city.*The city is now supplied with some public buildings, including the Governor's residence, barracks and army storehouse, the Post office, the State prison, and a mint where about $40,000 is coined monthly.*The entire coinage is in silver; all the gold production of the State is exported.*American money commands a premium, running as high as 11½%, and on steamers days and other occasions of great demand for American coin it has sold at even greater figures.*A Sheriff's Remark.*From the Kansas City Journal.]*This remark is attributed to a Massachusetts sheriff: "Many women come to me at the jail and want to read and talk to the criminals, but I tell them to go and read and talk to the men in the class that are as yet not criminal, and keep them from being selected."*Worthy Wisdom.*From the Courier-Journal.]*Miss Ayer, whose father advertised himself into a colossal fortune, refused to sell his country in the hope of getting a better one. The court of admiralty advised him to sell his estate.*The city is now supplied with some public buildings, including the Governor's residence, barracks and army storehouse, the Post office, the State prison, and a mint where about $40,000 is coined monthly.*The entire coinage is in silver; all the gold production of the State is exported.*American money commands a premium, running as high as 11½%, and on steamers days and other occasions of great demand for American coin it has sold at even greater figures.*Manual labor is given over almost entirely to the Yaqui Indians, who are descendants of the tribe of the Yaqui River, in the southern part of the State. Dressed in light cotton, with broad straw hats, sandaled feet, and gorged serapes, they are ornamental, and are said to be useful. It is on the shores of the Yaqui that*SAM BRANNAN'S PARADE.*was located, and from all I can learn, it is by far the finest portion of the city.*If the Yaqui Indians could be expelled, it would prove very desirable for purposes of colonization.*But the Yaqui are industrious, powerfully and treacherous, farming their own lands, and effectually checking outside interference, after the simple methods of their forefathers—scraping a kind and careless people.*A KINDLY AND CARELESS PEOPLE.*I have found the people of Sonora to be kindly and carefree in their ways, though not remaining among them, for they soon cease to be strangers. In this respect they but resemble the Mexican people wherever found; but, a stranger in a strange land, I probably appreciate the characteristic Mexican consciousness of public opinion and the strong arm of the law."*The resolutions, as amended, were adopted.*JOSEPH MURTAGH & CO.,*40 NORTH MAIN STREET,*Will open on MONDAY, and the following days their summer stock of*Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods,*Hosiery, Notions and Laces.*Most of the above goods have been purchased at a DISCOUNT of FIFTY (50) Cents on the dollar, and will be sold in proportion.*CORN BEER.*From the Washington Daily News.]*Mary Andersson says that for her part she thinks Edwin Booth very unreasonable to object to being kissed by men. Los Angeles Daily Times---Supplement.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 7, 1883.

How they Began and How they Ended.

Youths' Temperance Banner.]

It began this way: Two boys came to the city from the country. They left home with kindly words of advice ringing in their ears. Their parents bade them remember the good counsel given them in youth, and earnestly entreated them to resist the many temptations which the city would place before them. And they promised to remember the words of loving counsel, and went out from the hearthstone of home to face the world and fight the battle of life, brave of heart and hopeful of overcoming in the strife.

One day they were going by a saloon. On the screen, which stood a little way back from the open doors hiding from the passers-by what took place within, was displayed a card on which was written: "Fresh lemonade. Only five cents a glass."

"A glass of cool lemonade would taste good this hot day," said John. "Let's go in and get some."

"I'd like the lemonade well enough," said Phillip, "but I don't really fancy the idea of going to a saloon to get it."

"Pshaw!" laughed John. "What difference does it make whether you buy your lemonade here or somewhere else? We needn't drink anything else if we don't want to."

"I know that," answered Phillip, hesitating. "I was thinking that father wouldn't like it if he knew. He's opposed to saloons, you know."

"Yes, but how's he to know anything about it?" urged John. "Come on; I'll pay for the lemonade." And he drew his companion into the saloon.

They drank their lemonade. The proprietor exerted himself to make their call pleasant, and when they were going he urged them to have another drink.

"Better have a little something in it to give it the right kind of flavor," he said smilingly.

"All right," said John; and the man poured some of the contents of a long-necked bottle into each glass. The boys drank it down. The liquor was strong enough to produce considerable effect upon them. It made them "jolly," they told each other; but I don't think either of them would have called the effect that if they could have foreseen what the end would be.

Well, they went to that saloon again. It was not long before they felt a kind of contempt for a man who would drink anything as mild as lemonade. That might do for boys, but they were men and they could drink whisky and brandy and gin. And they could smoke, and play cards and billiards, and talk slang. This kind of an education is acquired with wonderful rapidity. In six months they were good scholars in the school of ruin.

The end came to one two years ago. In a drunken brawl he was stabbed to the heart. To the other the end came only last week. "Died of delirium tremens," a friend said.

It is sad to think that daily boys are beginning this kind of life, and sadder to think what the end may be. O boys! be careful, be careful.

New Name for Washington Territory.

It is now proposed to change the name of Washington territory upon her admission into the union as a State to Tahoma, which is said to be the proper orthography for the name usually written Tacoma. Tahoma is an Indian word, meaning "Almost to heaven," and was the name given by the Indians to Mount Rainier on account of the great height of that mountain, which is put down at 14,000 feet above sea level. Nearly every State and Territory has a county of Washington and also a town called Washington. Should Idaho and Washington be admitted as States, with north Idaho as an adjunct of the western sister, and with names unchanged, we would have the distressing anomalies of a Washington county in Idaho and an Idaho county in Washington, besides a town of Washington in Idaho county, State of Washington.

Engineer Roebling's Wife.

While so much has been written about the Brooklyn bridge and those who have had a share either in planning or building it, there remains one whose services have not been publicly acknowledged. A few days ago the New York papers mentioned the trial of Richards for the murder of Nichols begins at Auburn to-day.

The Democrats were successful at the local election at San Buenaventura Saturday.

John George of Redding, Shasta county, has a curiosity in the shape of a woolly pig.

Very little gold has come from the Mulege placer, and water is very scarce in the vicinity.

The San Joaquin Valley Agricultural Association will offer $30,000 in premiums this year.

The Catholic Church at Willow was robbed on the 24th of May, and the vestments cut to pieces.

Business has fairly opened at Truckee. The mills are running and the lumber business promises to be excellent.

The Sun says every indication points to the success of the proposed canal from near Red Bluff through Colusa county.

At Visalia on the 16th, a meeting is to be held to adopt some general system of irrigation for Tulare county.

Harris Pollington, living near Goldendale, Yakima county, W. T., was caught under a falling tree Sunday and instantly killed.

M. D. Fairchild has severed his connection with the Gridley Mercury and Mrs. William De Mott has assumed control of the paper.

Oceanside is the name of a new watering place just laid out on the line of the California Southern Railroad, in San Diego county.

Manuel Oliver eloped from Nevada City Sunday, with Maggie Quigley, a fourteen-year-old girl. Oliver is an amateur painter.

The conduct of unruly boys has necessitated the placing of a policeman at the tent of the Hobbies Association now at Marysville.

An aurora borealis was witnessed about one o'clock Friday morning at Marysville. The Appeal says the display was of surpassing loveliness.

Manuel Oliver, a house painter and an amateur pedestrian, eloped with Maggie Quigley, a fourteen-year-old resident of Nevada City, last Sunday.

Twelve or party of picnickers were poisoned near Wartham, in Tulare county, last week, by eating canned meats. Fortunately, antidotes were secured in time to save their lives.

Joe Foster shot and mortally wounded A. J. Beckwith Tuesday, near Millerton. He fired two shots. Beckwith had given information which caused Foster's arrest for hog-stealing.

Abram Deforce, father of Laura Deforce Gordon and Gertie Deforce Cluff of the Valley Review, died yesterday morning at Lodi of chronic bronchitis, aged eighty years and eight days.

An Indian attempted to strangle a lady at Santa Barbara Sunday. The lady's sister struck the Indian with a rock, when he released himself and fled into the mountains. There are no stones on the surface of the ground within ten miles of the lake. A few years ago the ice on the lake broke through the wall in in the spring as the ground can be had in fair working order, in hills or ridges, about three feet apart, covering in light, warm soils about four inches deep; but in cold, wet situations two and a half or three inches will be sufficient.

Mrs. Lillie Wall, of Irwin county, was dangerously ill for several days and the doctors quietly informed her father, Mr. Jasper Wall, that his daughter could not possibly live. Going to her bedside and viewing her sadly, the father said: "My darling child you are obliged to die, but I only hope that I may die first." Shortly after he went into convulsions and died. His death was followed three hours later by the death of his daughter.

In Virginia City, yesterday morning, Mrs. Mike Foley, by the breaking of a railing, was precipitated from a porch one foot to the ground, and her right thigh broken. She was taken to the county hospital. The woman had only two days ago returned from a four month's sojourn at the Genoa Hot Springs, where she went on account of rheumatism.

What's in a name? A trotting horse, bearing the swift name of Lightning, made a mile in four minutes. It is a thundering poor record for lightning.

STATE AND COAST.

The veteran soldiers at Salt Lake held a reunion Saturday evening.

The old Mission Church at Santa Barbara is to be repaired.

Yesterday, on the Colonial Rancho, Mrs. Michael Kaufman, aged sixty-seven years, went out in the field near her house, when a young bull broke down the intervening fence and severely injured the lady. Her physician thinks she may recover, though she is terribly bruised.

John W. Dolan, who on last Sunday was shot by S. A. Perkins, on the Tice valley ranch, Contra Costa county, died yesterday morning from the effect of the wounds he received. Dolan was well known in Oakland, and was first sergeant of Co. C, Third regiment, N. G. C.

Soul-Traps of San Francisco.

The Central Presbyterian Tabernacle was well filled last evening by those anxious to hear the pastor, Rev. W. J. Smith, on "The Soul-Traps of San Francisco." The first trap, he said, was that laid to catch young men who occupy little rooms eight by ten, who have no place to go and wander about on the streets and drop into these free-lunch and beer saloons to peruse the papers, attracted there by Satan's trap, the music, the women, the free-shows. This rooms-to-let and boarding-house life is the curse of this city and hundreds of families are ruined by it. The second trap was that of the free-thinkers, who believe in no God, but believe it the right of liberty to believe nothing unless it can be proved. The third trap is that of spiritualism, the most damnable of them all. The fourth trap is that of merchants who teach young men the art of cheating and swindling, to sell their goods. The fifth trap is that of nibbling at the glass for sociability's sake. The sixth trap is that of the idle girl, who to pass time, reads novels and bad books, and who loves to mash the dude young man. The sixth and last trap is that of the would-be fashionable young lady, who cares only to dress and flirt, who is made up of paint, padding, powder and feathers, who would never make a man a wife or a home companion, but who would give him a little hell on this earth.

According to Nordenskjold, the aurora borealis is a permanent natural phenomenon in the polar regions. It appears every night, and always in the same part of the sky. The center of the aurora is a little to the north of the magnetic pole, in a plane perpendicular to the polar axis. This would be something like one of Saturn's rings, but of a different composition, and with frequent changes of brilliancy and form.

The Duke of Cambridge has raised the question in England, whether ladies should be permitted to be present at public dinners, by declining to take the chair at the Caledonian Asylum dinner because ladies were to sit down with gentlemen at the banquet.

The Duke of Albany made no objection last year, but the refusal of the Duke of Cambridge compelled the Earl of Galloway, at the last moment, to preside. An angry discussion is now going on.

How nice it will be for Mrs. Davis, during the hot weather, walking along on the shady side of the great ex-senator. What a cool, moss-covered-wall kind of shadow his portly form must throw!

General Wimpffen of the French Army, in a letter to the Government, says the object of Von Moltke's tour recently in Italy was to study the best route for the invasion of southern France.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs has informed the Spanish Senate that he believed the treaty between Peru and Chile has been already signed, and the conditions are honorable to both countries.

The statement that a duel with swords was fought on the Swiss frontier Sunday between George Cassagnac an old sergeant-major, in which the former had his throat scratched, is denied.

Courtney accepts an offer from a Rochester company, and will give bonds in $10,000 to row his best in a race with a Haulan for $5,000. It is probable that the race will be either rowed in Cincinnati or St. Louis.

The Governor of Pennsylvania has signed the railroad bill allowing railroad companies a capital stock amounting to $15,000 per mile, and placing the maximum of stock and bonds at $300,000.

No rain has fallen in the vicinity of Rio Grande city for a month. Rangers report water and grass scarce. The drought is terrible all over Western Texas, and disastrous fires are reported in stock districts.

The German Lutheran Ministerium has resolved to appropriate $300,000 towards the foundation of a German professorship in the Philadelphia Seminary, in commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther.

Lieutenant Rudd of the Rangers, now stationed on the Lower Rio Grande, reports to the Adjutant-General that a few days before his arrival a body of Mexicans crossed the Rio Grande and robbed a store in Hidalgo county, of $8,000 worth of goods.

The Earl of Westmeath is dead.

Dodge City, Kansas, is excited over the proclamation posted stopping all gambling. Luke Short, the boss gambler, is defiant, and remains at his place of business. The arrival of Bob Masterson being announced, parties heavily armed are being formed against him.

The Suez Canal Company has adopted the proposal of De Lesseps to examine into the project of the construction of a second canal across the isthmus. De Lesseps assured the company that the English directors were giving local assistance, and proposed another canal would be formed.

The Austin Grand Jury indicted from forty to fifty members of the Texas Legislature for gambling. Some one entered the County Clerk's office Saturday night and stole all the indictments returned by the grand jury for violation of the gambling law, including those against members of the Legislature.

How the Indians Elect Their Great Medicine Man.

Chico Record.

Yesterday the Indians on Rancho Chico had lively sports in their "sweat-house." A large crowd of people from town witnessed the dancing. The Diggers kept up their horrid yell until late in the night. This "sweat-house" is built in the shape of a hill, or mound, an entrance being had from a hole in the top. It is built of heavy lumber and covered with dirt. The air inside is almost stifling, but the Indians stay in the house for several hours. The occasion yesterday of the demonstration was the election of a medicine man, and the Indians were rigged out in their best dry goods. This election business with the Indians was conducted "on the square," the best man physically, taking the office. There is no chance for casting illegal ballots, and they don't trif with the great register. The two applicants take their places in the "sweat-house," and at a given signal they begin dancing. It is not a graceful, gliding waltz, but it is something after the style of the "Highland Fling," the Indians jumping and kicking until a person would think they would jerk their limbs off. The man who can stand this work the longest is the best man, and is elected. Yesterday the fun commenced in the forenoon, and was not finished until midnight. The jumpers gave out several times and had to be rubbed and bathed by their friends, and finally one of the bucks quit saying that he had all he could stand.

Manners

From the Judge.

Nilson says that Americans are not polished in their manners. They compare very favorably, though, with a carload of Swedes going West.

The Single Eye-glass, From the New Orleans Picayune.

The single eye-glass is worn by the dude. The theory is that he can see with one eye much more than he can comprehend.

Miss Jennie Corson, known as the "Montana" Shepherdess, went to Montana about a year ago and bought a band of sheep and ranch near Oaika, in Meagher county, paying therefor $10,000 cash. She has managed her business entirely herself, and now has a good sheep ranch as there is Montana. Her sheep and ranches are said to be worth $7,000 more than they cost a year ago.

A bachelor and a spinster, who had been schoolmates in youth and were about the same age, met in after years, and the lady chancing to remark that "men live a great deal faster than women," the bachelor remarked: "Yes, Maria; the last time we met we were twenty-four years old; now I am over forty, and I hear you haven't reached thirty yet." They never met again.

There can be no doubt of the truth of the following statement, if it is made by the Boston Journal, who is not anything if not truthful: "Some people near Laprairie, Canada, who went to cut ice recently, found it so thick that they could not operate, owing to the saw which was about five feet in length, not being long enough to cut through it."

The enormous amount of $627,000,000 has been collected as taxes on tobacco since the Internal Revenue Bureau began operations.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean speaks a few serious words on a subject which parents may well thoroughly consider:

A lady who has given the subject of street flirtations some attention declares: "There is a dashing boldness to the girls of the present day that is not only disgusting, but exceedingly dangerous—dangerous because it engulfs in ruin our sons as well as our daughters. By their manners they invite gentlemen to form their acquaintances, even going so far as to accost them on the streets."

There is no doubt in the world that many girls and young women are lacking in the modesty that would entitle them to gentle consideration, and it is quite as manifest that they are as largely responsible for the presence on the streets of the indecent creature known as "masher" as is the depraved nature of such men. It is no nice matter to look after the girls as it is to drive the "betrayed" from the streets. It is a brazen man indeed who speaks to a woman who offers him no sort of encouragement.

Cardinal McCloskey is described by a Chicago correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, who saw him in the street, as a spare, erect man, of medium height, with a singularly benign face, close shaven, and a quiet gravity of demeanor, which rather than any weight of port, imparted dignity. One instinctively, and without exactly knowing why, accorded him the distinction of being a personage—that is, something more than a mere person. The mould of his features was Irish. His eyes were blue and piercing. His grayish brown hair was smoothed out until it glistened. His hands were small and almost womanish in their softness and whiteness. On the signet finger of the left hand he wore an Oriental sapphire intaglio, set with blazing diamonds. His suit was black, and his high shirt collar was bent over a stock of purple silk. His hat, like his garb, was a clerical-looking black silk.

Haeckel once undertook to show how old maids contribute to the population of England, and his argument, if not conclusive, was ingenious. He argued beef was necessary to the population, and red clover necessary to the raising of beef. But red clover could not be fertilized without bumble-bees. Field mice destroy the nests of bumble-bees, and the only way to preserve the bees is to destroy the mice. Cats are necessary to the destruction of field mice; old maids are the only effective means known by which the cat supply can be kept up to the requisite standard, and therefore by raising cats, old maids contribute to the population of England.

It is said that Gustave Doré, many years ago, while on a tour in Switzerland, happened to lose his passport. Arriving at Lucerne, he asked to be allowed to speak to the Mayor, to whom he gave his name. "You say that you are M. Gustave Doré," replied the Mayor, "and I believe you," but, he added, producing a pencil and a piece of paper, "you can easily prove it." Doré looked around him and saw some women selling potatoes in the street. With a few touches he reproduced the scene, and putting his name to the sketch, gave it to the Mayor. "Your passport is perfectly in order," remarked the official, "but you must allow me to keep it as a souvenir, and to offer you in return one in the ordinary form."

Miss Jennie Corson, known as the "Montana" Shepherdess, went to Montana about a year ago and bought a band of sheep and ranch near Oaika, in Meagher county, paying therefor $10,000 cash. She has managed her business entirely herself, and now has a good sheep ranch as there is Montana. Her sheep and ranches are said to be worth $7,000 more than they cost a year ago.

The swift American steamship line which was talked of some time ago, to carry passengers between London and New York in five or six days, has been abandoned because of the failure to obtain a $600,000 subsidy from the government. An English company, however, is building steamships on the Clyde, to accomplish the same results, and it is expected that in ninety days, passengers from New York can be landed at London in six days.

In his sermon on a Palm Sunday, a parish curate said: "Brethren, I give you notice that to avoid confusion, I shall confess liars on Monday, misers on Tuesday, thieves on Wednesday, libertines on Thursday, slanderers on Friday, drunkards on Saturday." It is said that he had few penitents at his confessional.

It is said that gravel yielding $10 to the carload has been found in a new raise in the Bald Mountain Extension mine within the last day or two.
